Pancreatitis is an inflammatory process that may lead to the progressive loss of exocrine and endocrine function of the pancreas.

Incidence of pediatric pancreatitis is increasing. The etiology varies from adult population, multiple and often concurrent causes are involved (mainly genetics and congenital malformation).

Work up and clinical management are also different from adults. Endoscopic Retrograde Cholangiopancreatography (ERCP) and endoscopic ultrasounds (EUS) play an emerging role in diagnosis and therapy of children with pancreatitis.

As both procedures are invasive and complex and no dedicated accessories are available for small patients, a formal training with simulators and observership at high volume centers, together with an up-to-date knowledge of the disease, are recommended to guarantee an adequate clinical efficacy and a satisfactory safety profile.

GENERAL INFORMATION

No auditors are expected at the congress.
The first 70 registrations will be accepted.

ACCREDITATION FOR CONTINUING MEDICAL EDUCATION (ECM- only for Italian participants)

10 training credits are assigned to the congress for all medical specialities, nurse, pediatric nurse.

The release of credits is subordinate to the actual presence of the participant in the entire training event, verified through manual registration (entry / exit signature), upon filling in the questionnaire evaluation of the event and passing the learning test. At the end the certificate of participation will be issued online, while the ECM certificate will be downloadable online if the test is successful.

REGISTRATION FEE

The registration fee is € 50,00 and it includes participation in the scientific sessions, congress kit, coffee breaks, lunches and participation certificate.

EACCME CREDITS

Has been accredited by the European Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (EACCME®) with 10 European CME credits (ECMEC®s). Each medical specialist should claim only those hours of credit that he/she actually spent in the educational activity.
